J. SMITH HAYS

OUT OF RACE

After Conference With Friends and Relatives He Withdraws Nominating Papers

Judge W. R. Shackelford isn't to have opposition after all for the democratic nomination for Circuit Judge.

A dispatch from Frankfort to the morning papers says that Hon. J. Smith Hays has withdrawn as a candidate for the democratic nomination and Judge Shackelford is therefore given a clear field on the democratic ticket.

Judge Hays spent Monday, court day, in Richmond, with a number of his friends. It is understood that he canvassed the situation thoroughly, advising with both democrats and republicans, as his nominating papers had been filed by both. Consultations were held, and then it was decided, it is said, that the time was not ripe for opposition to the "Big Judge" and he will go to the post unopposed for the democratic nomination.

Mr. Hays is said to have found sentiment at Richmond for Shackelford by an overwhelming majority. In the other counties of the district—even Clark—it is said to be the same way. Many of Mr. Hays' close relatives and best friends here are said to have advised against his entrance into the race at this time.

Being a man of discernment and general anagosity in the premises as well as a very capable lawyer and pleasant gentleman, Mr. Hays decided that they were right, and sent word to Frankfort according to the dispatch in the morning Herald, to have his name taken off the democratic ballot.

Judge Shackelford thus goes before the people once more and will receive the solid endorsement of his constituency for reelection as Judge, and be in a commanding position for Governor in 1923.

THE TRUTH ABOUT

MEXICO TONIGHT

At Chautauqua Wednesday Afternoon—Popular Concert—National Male Quartet. Night—Popular Concert—National Male Quartet. Illustrated Lecture—The Truth About Mexico—Dr. Frederick Monsen.

Two of the best programs of the Chautauqua were presented to the local patrons of the big tent Tuesday. After the prelude the audience was entertained by Harry J. Loose with a lecture on "Crime, Its Cause, Practice and Prevention." Mr. Loose, formerly a detective, gave some inside points on the crime wave that recently spread over this country. He explained that foreigners are the chief offenders of the law in the big cities. Some European countries send their criminals to the United States and we have the very worst of the foreigners to deal with. He said that the Italian criminals in the city of Chicago had invented a knife which had a glass blade and a steel handle. After the victim had been stabbed the handle would be broken off and thrown away. This wound could not be found even by the X-ray. A very large audience attended this afternoon performance.

"As You Like It," one of William Shakespeare's great comedies, was presented at the evening performance of the Redpath Chautauqua Tuesday, by the Ben Greet Players. It thoroughly pleased the huge audience that packed the big tent. The play was under the personal direction of Grace Halsey Mills, who took the part of Rosalind in Shakespeare's great comedy. Edward Forbes as a clown played a stellar part and entertained the audience with several songs. Two Normal students acted as attendants in the play.

They are headed by Supt. O. B. Falls of the Boyle county schools, and include the following: Supt. O. B. Falls, Prof. H. C. Haggan, O. Perryville, Miss Ruth Harmon of Martin, Profs. Enoch Smallwood, of Parksville, Mullins, of Willow Grove, and E. L. Grubbs of Junction City, Miss Mary Minor, of Sycamore, Mrs. Goole, of Salt River, Mrs. W. M. Baucum, of Junction City, Mrs. Gilbert Moore, of Shelby City, and Miss Nora Coppage, of Chestnut Grove.

MISS BETTIE FORBES

Miss Bettie Forbes, who lives with her brother on the Barnes Mill pike, near the Pond church, suffered a severe heat stroke Tuesday about noon, while picking blackberries near her home. She was taken home in a perfectly unconscious state and as the Daily Register goes to press her physicians do not hold out the slightest hope for her recovery. Miss Forbes' many friends in the community hope to hear more encouraging news from her very soon and are sincerely hoping to see her out again.

Later—Miss Forbes died at 12 o'clock Wednesday, never having regained consciousness. Burial in Richmond cemetery Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock with brief services at the grave. Pallbearers will be John Adams, Robert, Edgar, and Tom Adams, James Pearson and George DeJarnette.

Beech Jett, who admitted to the court that he was drunk and doesn't remember anything about it, was given $100 and 50 days on a disorderly conduct charge. Testimony showed that Jett stuck a pistol in the stomach of a man who came to town with a load of blackberries, telling him he was the "high sheriff" and made him open up his bucket of berries and unload them right on the street. Jett was also held to the next grand jury on a charge of carrying a deadly weapon concealed. He pled guilty to this charge, but claimed he knew nothing about the others.

THERE WAS "MUCH ADD ABOUT NOTHING"

"Bathing Suit Ball" Shocked No One and Governor Declined Invitation He Didn't Get

It seems that a lot of unnecessary "fuss" was made about that much advertised "bathing suit ball" at Crab Orchard Springs. In the first place, Gov. Morrow wasn't invited to it after all. He was invited to attend the Governor's Ball the night before, and nothing was said to him about the other. In the second place, it was more of a fancy dress affair than anything else. But here's what the Stanford Journal says about the whole thing, and it happened right in its county and it ought to know:

The management of Crab Orchard Springs say that Governor Edwin P. Morrow declined an invitation that was never offered. He was invited to the dance on Friday evening, which was known as the Governors Ball, and would have been more than welcome, but he was not invited to the bathing suit ball, nor was it expected that he would be there. They say further that the Governor expressed a delight at the idea of resuming the Governor's Balls of the long ago, when it was suggested.

The bathing suit ball given at Crab Orchard Saturday evening wasn't half bad. On the contrary it was a very tame affair and the hundreds who gathered with the hope, or at least the expectation of "seeing things," were disappointed. At 9 o'clock to the step of a march beautifully played by the Springs orchestra, the couples of dancers entered the big dancing hall. Each wore a bathing suit, but in most instances it was not visible, the suits of man colored tissue paper, taking the place of the usual apparel seen in a ball room, hiding from view the abbreviated garments. Some of the suits or dresses were artistically made and they were all pretty. There were bare arms and the dresses did not drag the floor nor tickle the chin, but they were not distressingly short at bottom or top. A fancy dress ball would have been a better name for the dance, although many people were attracted to the Springs by the name given. There was nothing to shock the modesty of any one and Gov. Morrow would not have had to turn his eyes or hid behind his hat had he been there. He possibly, in the opinion of some, preserved the dignity of the office he holds by not being present but if the present Governor of Kentucky, or any of his successors do nothing worse than attend a ball like that given at Crab Orchard Springs last Saturday evening the dignity of the office will not be lowered, nor will the voters who put them in office have reason to wish they had not done so. At first blush a "bathing suit ball" does not listen well but there was nothing the matter with the one at Crab Orchard Springs, except possibly disappointment to the morbid who gathered there expecting to see something terrible. It was something new under the sun, however, and the Pictorial Review, learning of it, had a representative on hand to picture the dance and the public will soon get the benefit of it.

REPUBLICANS PRAISE THEIR TARIFF BILL

(By Associated Press) Washington, July 6.—A tariff law which would become a Magna Charta for perpetuation of our American standards of living and a constitution of uniform and universal prosperity, was the goal of the republican members of the House Ways and Means committee in drafting the administration's permanent tariff bill, says a report filed by chairman Fordney, with the House today. The bill was formally presented in the same form it was introduced last week. The report was assigned, but Mr. Fordney said he understood all the republican members except Representative Frear were ready to sign. The democratic members of the committee will meet late today to draft a minority report.

In the bunch which escaped with a few bruises were Roy Young, "Pink" O'Neil, Robert Neff, and Weisenburgh and Head. The many friends of the popular young man are glad to know the injury is not serious.

JUDGE CARROLL TALKS ON REFORMERS

Celebrated Jurist Makes Plea for Personal Liberty Before Bar Association

(By Associated Press)

Ashland, Ky., July 6.—A plea for the right of the people generally to enjoy in a decent way pleasures that appeal to them, and the declaration that attempts of certain persons to assume to lead and regulate law making bodies is doing more harm than good to the people at large, featured the address here today of John D. Carroll, former Chief Justice of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, and editor of the Kentucky Statutes, before the annual session of the Kentucky Bar Association.

Judge Carroll took as his subject "A Text from the Declaration of Independence," and chose the words "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are * * * liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Judge Carroll paid tribute to Thomas Jefferson, author of the declaration of Independence and asserted that there is no place in this country for persons who are not willing to give our government and institutions their undivided support and that "if people from other countries desire to come here we have the right to and must insist that they leave their foreign ideals and foreign ideas and become American citizens, a part of the Americanism that dominates the country. * * * This we have a right to demand and any foreign born subject who is not willing to accede to it has no place or business in this country."

The word "liberty" Judge Carroll said, means in a general way freedom of speech and action within lawful limits and covers every activity of life. It carries with it the right of the citizen to do as he pleases with himself and his property, provided that he keeps within the law. It means that workers and employers have the right to organize and adopt and enforce rules and regulations.

While there have been great outbreaks of lawlessness, the majority of citizens of the state believe that every citizen has the right to live in peace and pursue his lawful occupation, said the Judge. There are, however, so many federal, state and city and town laws that the law abiding citizen often does not know which way to turn to avoid breaking one. "I should say," he added, "that their only safety from the sin of infraction lies in the fact that many of these silly municipal as well as state laws soon fall into such general disrespect that they are more honored in the breach than in the observance. Petty, foolish, irritating laws are more a hindrance to needed law enforcement than any other single agency I can think of," he said.

There seems no escape from these multiplied laws, Judge Carroll said, because the rule of the majority is vital, but it is important that "no law be adopted by any lawmaking body that is not needed to safeguard the public welfare and secure in a broad-minded liberal way to each citizen the enjoyment of life, liberty, prosperity and happiness."

Attempts of certain persons to assume to lead and regulate law making bodies is doing more of harm than good to the people at large, the Judge asserted. "There has come up in the state as well as in the nation, within the last few years, a disposition to regulate everybody and everything," he said, "by one kind of law or another, and as a result we are suffering grievously at this time from a widespread epidemic of regulation. Where this habit originated or why it has become so popular a fashion with some of our citizens who assume to lead and direct law making bodies, I am not prepared to say, but I do know it is doing more harm than good to the body politic." Judge Carroll said he would not designate nate "regulators" as reformers in the true sense of the word because the "regulator" first makes up his mind that "everything he does is exactly right and everything he does not do is awfully wrong. Having reached this satisfactory, to himself, conclusion, his next step is to inaugurate a plan or method by which sports and amusements and forms of entertainments obnoxious to him may be forbidden." Big private business enterprises are under the eyes of the "regulator" and soon instead of three departments of government, "we will have five, the Legislative, the Executive, the Judicial, the Commission and the Regulator."

"In conclusion," said Judge Carroll, "let me venture the hope that the hand that the regulator would lay on business as well as persons, may be stayed for a little while. Let us give the people young and old, an opportunity to enjoy in a decent way, in seeking pleasures and promoting business, that liberty and happiness that is their natural right. In place of attempting the impossible task of making people moral and virtuous by legislation let me suggest that the principles of morality and virtue be inculcated in the home, the church and the school, leaving the government the right to make and enforce only such laws as may be necessary to prevent and punish offenses that are really detrimental to the public good.

"Let me venture to say, that the crying evils of the day are disrespect of the law and the consequence, lack of law enforcement, the enactment of too many trifling, insubstantial laws interfering with business as well as pleasure. Let me suggest that what we need is better law enforcement and not more laws; that if all the unnecessary regulatory laws now in force through statute and ordinance were repealed and the remaining useful laws enforced respect for law would be the rule and not the exception."

It is hardly safe for a man to take his women folks to the movie these days, since directors have grown more and more bent on lavish productions. Half the pictures, these days, include style shows, so that wives and daughters come home from the theatre not only more than ever in love with some favorite star, but perfectly enraptured over some costume shown upon the screen.

It is safe to say that no fashion show seen upon screens within the past year, surpasses in magnificence that seen in Justine Johnstone's latest picture, "Sheltered Daughters," which is shown at the local theatres today.

The story deals with a studious little book-worm and day dreamer whose world changes when by chance she goes into a smart gown shop in Fifth Avenue, New York. The proprietor sees the girl is a real beauty, though badly dressed, and engages her as a manikin. In fine feathers the girl is conspicuously lovely, and she does not fail to attract attention and admiration. Soon she is plunged into the midst of what seems to be mere romance, but which is in reality an international intrigue. The scenes in the modiste's shop will be of the greatest interest to women patrons of the theatre, as a dozen manikins arrayed in the very latest Parisian fashions, paraded before the camera.

SCHOOL CHILDREN INTERESTED IN BIRDS

(By Associated Press)

Chicago, July 6.—Interest in the birds of America is growing rapidly among the public school children and their organization in bird study clubs has advanced to large proportions.

Enrollment in the schools of the United States and Canada for the past ten years totaled 1,676,743, T. Gilbert Pearson, of New York, president of the National Association of Audubon Clubs, announces. Classes numbered 66,709 in this period.

Next year the Association will try to enlist a third of a million children.

"Hundreds of thousands of bird-boxes are made and placed by the children, birds are fed by them in every state of the Union in winter, and hundreds of programs are performed on Bird Day and at other times to arouse general interest in bird study in the schools," Mr. Pearson said.

Totals of enrollment in the middle and southwest for the last decade were thus given by the national association:

States	Bird Classes	Members
Arkansas	87	2738
Indiana	1434	36887

How Her Child Was Helped

Mrs. H. Stegall, Theodore, Ala., writes: "My child suffered for 12 years with weak bladder. I tried doctors, also dietician medicines, with no results whatever. I tried Foley Kidney Pills. They cured my child in four months. Good for backache, lameness, soreness, rheumatic pains. Sold everywhere."

MRS. CRAWFORD DIES AT RED HOUSE

Mrs. America Crawford, widow of the late James Crawford, who preceded her to the grave just nine months ago, passed peacefully away Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock at the home of her son, Anderson Crawford, at Red House, aged 71 years. Mrs. Crawford had been ill several months of a complication of troubles and all the loving, tender ministrations of her devoted daughters, Mrs. Courtney, of Lexington, and Mrs. Howell, of Winchester, seemed "unavailing and her spirit went back to God, who gave it.

Mrs. Crawford was for many years a devoted member of the Baptist church and when enjoying good health, was a faithful worker in the cause of the Master. May those who mourn be cheered with the thought that she fulfilled all the duties of wife, mother, and friend as God intended her gentle nature to do. Two daughters, Mrs. Mary Courtney, of Lexington, and Mrs. J. H. Howell, of Winchester, and five sons, Anderson Crawford, of Red House, Shelby Crawford, of Illinois, Samuel Crawford, of Doyleville, Owen and Cleveland Crawford, of Clark county, survive.

Funeral services will be held at the grave in Richmond cemetery, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Dr. O. Olin Green.

Timely Lesson for the Camper

This photograph conveys a timely lesson to all who go camping this summer. No good woodman ever leaves camp without carefully extinguishing the fire, as this woman is doing.

What is

MOTHER'S FRIEND

Simply and tersely stated, MOTHER'S FRIEND is just exactly what the name implies—a friend and help to mothers.

It has been made and sold for more than half a century. If it did not possess the value claimed for it, MOTHER'S FRIEND could not possibly have remained on the market. For only that which is really worth while and beneficial can survive.

The mothers who appreciate MOTHER'S FRIEND the most, and who are loudest in their praise of it, are those who unfortunately did not use it with their first baby, and who, through its use with the second one, were able to fully realize the relief it gave them.

DIDN'T EVEN NEED THE DOCTOR

"Dear Sir: I am willing and anxious to tell any mother about MOTHER'S FRIEND. It did me so much good that I wouldn't be without it if it cost $5.00 a bottle. With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I only had a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick and only sick about ten or fifteen minutes."

"Any mother can write me and I will only be too glad to give her advice. Yours truly,"

Popular Comedy Drama, "The Man from Home," Sixth Night at Chautauqua

"The Man from Home," sparkling comedy drama, will be given on the sixth night of the coming Redpath Chautauqua. The record-breaking success of the play throughout the country has been largely due to its wholesome Americanism, its seasoning of delightful shrewdness, and its humorously complicated plot. The play is rich with amusing and sometimes almost tragic situations, resulting from the clash between midwestern American ideals and old-world class distinctions. The characters are drawn from real life. Their quaintnesses, their absurdities, their loveliness and eccentricities, all are marked by the sure craftsmanship of those popular playwrights, Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson.

Big Change In Louisville Man—East Anything, Sleeps Sound and Feels Fine Now

"I just feel fine these days and Tanlac gets the credit from me," said Michael McCrone, 541 South Clay street, Louisville, Ky. "I was a miserable man for five years as a result of stomach trouble and catarrh of the head. No matter how careful I was about what I ate I was sure to suffer afterwards from indigestion. I had awful pains in my left side, too, and this, with the trouble that catarrh gave me, kept me from getting any sound rest. I wasted away until I was more than a skeleton. I actually lost thirty pounds in weight and grew so weak I had to stay home from work for days at a time." "Tanlac cleared up my catarrh almost in a jiffy and next it put my stomach in first class condition. It's a fact I hadn't been taking it long before all my troubles disappeared and I was feeling like a brand new man. I eat anything now, sleep sound as a log, never miss a day at work and feel fine all the time. I am putting on weight rapidly and have already gotten back 23 of the 30 pounds I lost while I was sick. I didn't think it was possible for a medicine to make such a big change in such a short time. Tanlac certainly does the work." Tanlac is sold in Richmond by Stockton and Son. It

NEIGHBOR TOWNS

SEEK ICE HERE

An ice shortage in several of the central Kentucky towns has been caused by the extremely hot weather of the last few days. Appeals are being made daily to the local ice plant for supplies of ice. The Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company is among those that have applied to the local plant. They, however, want ice at a cheaper price than the Richmond Ice Company sells it, so were unsuccessful in their attempt to obtain the ice here.

The plant at Hazard has proven too small to supply the needs of that section of the state. The L. & N. people need the ice to carry on the shipment of cantaloupes and peaches in refrigerator cars to the north.

Lancaster is also said to be facing an ice shortage. Most of the shortage is caused by the lack of water to supply the respective factories. The Richmond Ice Company is helping surrounding towns as much as possible but in doing so will not give up its reserves which might cause shortage here. The Lexington plant is thought to be having trouble in supplying the demands of that city. On the whole the ice plants in central Kentucky are holding on to their reserves so as not to cause a shortage in their home towns.

HOW MANY OBJECTS IN THIS PICTURE START WITH THE LETTER "C"

The picture above contains a number of objects beginning with the letter "C". Just take a good look at the picture. There are all kinds of things that begin with the letter "C"—like cow, calf, crane, etc. Nothing is hidden; you don't have to turn the picture upside down. Make a list of all the objects in the picture, the names of which begin with the letter "C". See who can find the most. Don't miss any. Fifteen prizes will be awarded for the fifteen best lists of words submitted. The answer having the largest and nearest correct list of words will be awarded first prize; second prize, 2nd prize, etc. (Extra puzzle pictures free on request.)

Everybody Join It

The Cincinnati Post announces a most interesting and amusing puzzle—a puzzle that is different and in which all can participate—from the tiniest child to grandfather and great-grandma. It really isn't a puzzle at all, for all the objects have been made perfectly plain with no attempt to disguise or hide them. None are so small but what the keenest eye can see them. It is a test of skill. Your ability to find "C-words" determines the prize you win. Right after the dishes are done this evening, gather all the members of your family together; give each one of them a pencil and sheet of paper—and see who can find the most "C-words." We know you will enjoy it, for everyone loves a puzzle.

Open To All—Costs Nothing To Try

The Post invites you, Mr. and Mrs. Reader and Family, to join in this puzzle game. We know you will find it to be the best game ever—full of fun and excitement; educational and interesting to all. Now that is saying a lot, but wait until you have tried it. We venture to say, "You will never have as much fun." It doesn't look hard, but it isn't. Write down those "C-words" you have in mind right now. Study the picture carefully. It is an interesting picture, just bubbling over with fun for puzzle lovers.

This is a puzzle game just for our readers outside the city of Cincinnati. No one living in Cincinnati is allowed to compete.

5. Words of the same spelling can be used only once, even though used in different places. An object can be named only once; however, any part of the object may be named. Do not use hyphenated or compound words nor words compounded by the combination of two or more complete English words, where each word in itself is an object.
6. The answer may be as long as possible.
7. The answer may be as long as possible.
8. Candidates may cooperate in answering the puzzle but only one prize will be awarded to any one household; nor will prizes be awarded to more than one of the family where two or more have been working together.
9. In the event of a tie for any prize offered, the full amount of such prize will be paid to each tied contestant.
10. All answers will receive the same consideration regardless of whether or not a subscription with the Cincinnati Post is sent in.
11. Three Cincinnati business men having no connection with the puzzle will be selected to act as judges and decide the winners. They will use Webster's New International Dictionary as their reference and participants agree to accept the decision of the judges as final and conclusive.
12. The judges will meet on August 3 and announcement of the Prize Winners and correct list of words will be published in the Cincinnati Post just as quickly thereafter as possible.

LITIGANTS OUGHT TO KNOW RIGHTS

Says Judge Gordon, Of Louisville, Speaking Before State Bar Association

(By Associated Press)
Ashland, Ky., July 6—Parties to law suits often would be saved loss if they had means of knowing their rights, Judge Thomas R. Gordon, of Louisville, declared here today in discussing "Declaratory Judgments," at the annual meeting of the Kentucky State Bar Association. Judge Gordon reviewed the spread of laws in the United States allowing persons in controversy to obtain definition of their rights in certain circumstances thus avoiding legal combat or loss to either party.

The first act of the kind, according to Judge Gordon, was passed in England and laws passed in a number of the United States have been patterned after it notably in Michigan, Wisconsin, Florida and Kansas. The Michigan act has been declared unconstitutional.

"The profession has taken hold with a vigorous hand of a plan to enable persons who have an actual controversy as to their rights in certain circumstances to have an authoritative and binding declaration of their rights by the court before there is an actual breach by one and an actual loss by another, thereby avoiding the legal combat or loss by either party," said Judge Gordon. "The purpose is laudable—the bar has manifestly not only an interest, but an unselfish interest, in devising and indorsing the plan. It is a new subject in procedural law."

"It is a reform and therefore may be met with hesitancy and conservatism that may or may not ultimately prevent the accomplishment of the object. I feel sure that the Kentucky bar will hear a discussion of the question with a willingness to accept it is on investigation it is found valuable. Nothing but good can come of the discussion. The law is a growth; it must and will adapt itself to the growing needs and demands of society. It devolves upon the bar to lend full assistance in directing this adjustment."

"The original power of jurisdiction by the fundamental principles of society at large and the life of the law has not been logic, it has been experience."

"Most men are honest. Law suits for the most part arise from an honest difference of opinion as to the rights of the parties; often it is a difference of opinion entertained by the parties; perhaps often a difference of opinion between counsel. If the parties could find out their rights before acting their action will conform most frequently to their rights, if counsel had means of knowing with reasonable certainty the rights of their clients, their clients would be saved loss by acting within their rights. It is an accepted principle that the courts' aid may not be invoked until a wrong is committed nor unless the judgment is to be invoked by process for immediate relief."

"The courts have refused to allow parties to appear in court except under conditions which permit a display of force by the judicial arm of the state. The wisdom of such condition of the law is well doubted and there is a persistent effort to give relief to relief to those who have controversies without the necessity of legal combat incident to the ordinary lawsuits."

"Declaratory judgments in one form or another have been authorized in the English courts in
